COMMODORE'S COMMENTS

We sure have been blessed with some beautiful weather weekends this summer. We just had that little window of threatening rain last Sunday morning which, unfortunately, interfered with the sailboat races, but other than that, the weekend weather was perfect. Let's hope the trend continues, and the sailors can get their races in this weekend.

Pat and I spent some time last week with friends who live on another lake in the area. As we were discussing our lakes and lake associations, I realized how lucky we are to be on Birch Lake. We have two things that make our community unique: The Birch Barker and our Yacht Club building. Each week as I read the Barker, I think how fortunate we are to have a way to keep us all connected and updated on happenings around the lake. On the other hand, the Yacht Club does not get weekly recognition and, for the most part, sits quietly unnoticed and under appreciated! Most lakes do not have a common building in which they can sponsor events. Let alone, one that has a kitchen! They must rely on homeowners opening their homes for meetings and social gatherings. Most of our summer events would be near impossible to host without our building. So take a minute to recognize how lucky we are to have our little blue building on the south side! I'm sure you also realize that the building does not take care of itself. Your dues help toward the upkeep of the building (taxes, insurance, electricity, water, maintenance, etc.) Thank you to all who have already paid their dues this year. If you haven't paid yet, it's not too late! Thank you also to the people who quietly donate their time to keep our Yacht Club in good shape. Bob Waddle has already done some minor repairs to the deck and is currently replacing bricks on our outdoor grill. Thank you, Bob! Also, a big thank you to Jim Bolinger, who cleans the Yacht Club before and after each event. Jim volunteered to do this in memory of his good friend, Don Harmon, who had done the job before him. It's a big job, and we sure appreciate Jim's willingness to take it on.

Ladies' golf outing was this weekend, and the men's is next weekend. I

New program helps improve shorelines

The Michigan Natural Shoreline Partnership recently launched a program to help lakefront homeowners understand best practices to protect their shoreland and inland lakes. The new Michigan Shoreland Stewards Program will recognize inland lake property owners who are using healthy property management practices to protect their inland lakes and offer tips to further improve the shoreline.

The Michigan Natural Shoreline Partnership promotes the use of shoreline best management practices to protect and improve lakeshore habitat and water quality in Michigan's inland lakes. It is a collaboration of state agencies, academia, nonprofit organizations and private industry.

"Many people think owning lakefront property requires installing a seawall and clearing natural vegetation to make way for a lawn," said Julia Kirkwood, chair of the Michigan Natural Shoreline Partnership and an environmental quality analyst at the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality. "But these types of activities change the lake ecosystem in ways that are hard to reverse."

High-impact development activities like seawall and other shoreline structure installation, natural vegetation clearing, and removing aquatic plants and fallen trees from the lake change the ecosystem and allow increased stormwater runoff, increased shoreline erosion and loss of habitat. As the lakeshore habitat deteriorates, animals such as birds, reptiles, amphibians and fish lose important breeding and feeding areas.

The 2007 National Lake Assessment, conducted by DEQ in conjunction with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, indicates the loss of lakeshore habitat is the biggest threat to the overall health of Michigan's inland lakes. Shoreline and nearshore habitat was shown to be in poor condition in more than 40 percent of Michigan's inland lakes, and in only fair condition in another 20 percent of lakes, according to the survey.

The Michigan Shoreland Stewards Program addresses this problem by providing recognition for property owners who are fostering natural shorelands on their properties. The program uses a web-based survey to ask property owners how they manage their properties to determine areas for improvement and potentially qualify for a certificate of recognition. Recognized Shoreland Stewards have the option of purchasing a low-cost sign for their properties to promote natural shorelines on their lake.

"We hope property owners will complete the survey to recognize their stewardship potential," said Joe Nohner, a resource analyst with the Department of Natural Resources, Fisheries Division. "And if a property does not meet the standards for a certificate, the property owner will be provided with suggestions to improve. Then we would encourage them to take the survey again once they've implemented changes to their practices."

For more information about the Michigan Natural Shoreline Partnership, visit www.mishorelinepartnership.org. To take the Michigan Shoreland Stewardship Program survey, visit www.mishorelandstewards.org.

FLEET CAPTAIN'S CORNER

Err on the side of caution

Last Sunday, was a very crazy morning that, I have to explain my actions. Harold and I put the marks out around 10 am as usual. Upon coming back to house, I checked the radar and there was a large band of storms coming across Lake Michigan. Seeing that, I decided to put the races off until noon, going out and telling the boats that were out there of the upcoming storm, by 11:30 the radar was still showing some yellows and reds on the screen, so I decided to cancel the races. To my dismay we only got about 10 drops of rain out of all the color on the radar screen. It is hard to put people in jeopardy when the information of possible storms are out there. There must have been a reason Mother Nature did not want us to sail. So we will try again this Sunday!

Until next week "Splice the main brace"

~Fleet Captain Mike~

When it comes to choosing a Realtor, it's not about claims of having or selling the most listings. Nor is it about the claims of being the "Lake or Waterfront Expert." It's about who will provide you with a quality experience and good results from listing or searching to closing. Read what my clients have to say and then call me when you're ready to sell or buy.

Elizabeth Carey and Steve Decker -- Sold our home on Indiana Lake

"Vickie is an extremely dedicated professional who will make you feel like you are her top priority. She can grasp complicated situations easily, explain them to you accurately, and then wisely advise you as to what to do. We found her knowledgeable in many areas and helpful in many ways beyond her obligations as a Realtor. You will enjoy working with this personable, warm, trustworthy lady who will take the stress and strain of buying and selling a home off your shoulders and put them onto hers."

Amanda North Druckeniller "Working with Vickie to sell our home was a pleasure! Our home sat on the market for a year with another realtor. We switched to Vickie and had an offer within a month! Vickie is prompt, professional and very knowledgeable in her field. I strongly recommend her for your realty needs!"

Tom Davidson -- Top qualities: Personable, Expert, High Integrity

"Vickie did an excellent job in finding a house in Michigan that represented what I was looking for. She also was instrumental in providing detailed information on the history of my property and several adjacent Birch Lake properties which along with her knowledge of building regulations allowed me to obtain a reduction in property taxes. She is dependable, knowledgeable, and follows through. I would highly recommend her."

Tony Clark -- Chevalier dans l'Ordre des Arts et des Lettres

"Vickie is the hardest working and most knowledgeable Realtor I have ever known. I have flipped about 7 properties. She sold my partner's house on Eagle Lake in a couple of weeks. While another Realtor had the listing for 9 months. She helped with taxes, inspections and legal transfers that were outside of her realm of duties."

What would happen if the Earth stopped spinning?

The probability for such an event is practically zero in the next few months. If the Earth stopped spinning suddenly, the atmosphere would still be in motion with the Earth's original 1,100 mile per hour rotational speed at the equator. All of the land masses would be scoured clean of anything not attached to bedrock. This means rocks, topsoil, trees, buildings, your cat, and so on, would be swept away into the atmosphere. Oceans and lakes would wash over everything, but eventually find equilibrium.

If the process happened gradually over billions of years, the situation would be very different, and it is this possibility which is the most likely as the constant torquing of the Sun and Moon upon the Earth finally reaches it's conclusion. If the rotation period slowed to 1 rotation every 365 days, a condition called 'sun synchronous,' every spot in the Earth would have permanent daytime or nighttime all year long. This is similar to the situation on the Moon where for 2 weeks the front-side is illuminated by the Sun, and for 2 weeks the back side is illuminated. This situation for the Earth is not the condition of 'stopped' rotation, but it is as close as the laws of physics will let the Earth get.

If it stopped spinning completely...not even once every 365 days, you would get 1/2 year daylight and 1/2 year nighttime. During daytime for 6 months, the surface temperature would depend on your latitude, being far hotter than it is now at the equator than at the poles where the light rays are more slanted and heating efficiency is lower. (We've talked about this.) This long-term temperature gradient would alter the atmospheric wind circulation pattern so that the air would move from the equator to the poles rather than in wind systems parallel to the equator like they do now. The yearly change in the Sun's position in the sky would then be just its seasonal motion up and down the sky towards the south due to the orbit of the Earth and its axial tilt. As we moved along constant lines of Earth latitude, we would see the elevation of the Sun increase or decrease in the sky just as we now see the elevation of the Sun change from a single point on the Earth due to the Earth's daily rotation.

For example, if we were at a latitude of +24 degrees North in the Summer and at a longitude where the Sun was exactly overhead, it would slide gradually to the horizon as Fall approached, but since the Sun has moved 90 degrees in its orbit, it would now be due west. Then as we approach Winter, we would be located on the dark side of the Earth, and would have to travel in longitude to a location 180 degrees around the Earth to see the Sun 1/2 way up the sky, because in the Winter, the Sun is 48 degrees south of its summer location in the sky. It's a little confusing, but if you use a globe of the Earth and orient it the right way, you can see how all this works out. Get right on that.

As for other effects, presumably the magnetic field of the Earth is generated by a dynamo effect that involves its rotation. If the Earth stopped rotating, it's magnetic field

The Moon for this Saturday

2.7 days before last quarter

Sunrise: 6:29am

Sunset: 9:12pm

Moonrise: 11:29pm

Moonset: 10:30am

Day length: 14h 43m

would no longer be regenerated and it would decay away to some low, residual value due to the very small component which is 'fossilized' in its iron-rich rocks. There would be no more 'northern lights' and the Van Allen radiation belts would probably vanish, as would our protection from cosmic rays and other high-energy particles. A very significant biohazard.

Buckle your seat belts and fasten your chin straps just in case. The ride has to come to an end some time. But for now, tickets are free.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Aries (March 21-April 19) Lucky you! This week you will enter a four-week window that might be one of the most fun months of the year! That's because your focus will now shift to parties, social occasions, the arts, movies, sports events, and enjoying yourself with others. Yes, "good times!" will be your motto. This fun month also favors romance, love affairs and new flirtations.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) You love your home. Right now and for the next month, home repairs and home-redecorating projects are tops on your agenda. Family gatherings might prompt frenzied cleaning sprees, ambitious culinary forays and exciting purchases. If you entertain friends and family at home, everyone will enjoy good food and good drink plus lively conversation! (

Gemini (May 21-June 20) The next four to five weeks will suit you perfectly because you hate to be bored. You like a fast, exciting pace. Now you will find that suddenly, your attention is on friends, neighbors, siblings and relatives. People want to talk to you. In addition to numerous conversations and errands, you will also take short trips and likely read, write and study more than usual.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) You're never casual about money. It doesn't mean you cannot spend it, but you are frugal and you like to get value for your money. These and other thoughts will absorb you for the next four weeks because your focus will be on money, cash flow, earnings and your possessions. However, at a subtle level, you will also ponder what you truly value.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) While it is true that Leos can sometimes be serious, they are always serious about having fun! They do it with drama and style! For the best success, shop for wardrobe treasures before August 5. From now until August 1, you are so empowered and articulate, your odds for success are stellar!

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The Sun, Mercury and Venus are all hidden in your chart - sending out a completely different vibe. Their placement promotes secret activity (including clandestine trysts and secret love affairs) as well as a desire to play things low key. This is why many of you will enjoy working alone or behind the scenes in the next several weeks.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) As your focus now turns to friends and relationships, you will be more aware of the role they play in your life. Do you hang out with quality people? Remember that the people you befriend are a reflection of who you are. Enjoy fun times and schmoozing with friends; but you can also expect to be more involved in classes, clubs, groups and organizations. Good time to formulate future goals.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Other people will notice you more than usual; furthermore, they will admire your capabilities and talents. Therefore, it's important to know two things: The next four weeks are the perfect time to ask for permission or approval from a boss, parent or someone in a position of authority, because they will likely comply!

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Starting this week, all Sagittarians will want to blow town because they need a change of scenery. The allure of new places, new faces and exciting adventure will tempt you; and the boredom of your daily routine will prompt you. Visit exotic places! Travel for pleasure! Make new friends from different cultures. Some will also explore profitable opportunities in publishing, the media, medicine, the law and higher education.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Whether you know it or not, you are a perfectionist. Others know this; but you are probably self-critical because you're not perfect. In the next four weeks, you will strive to be the best that you can be. You might decide to drop some bad habits.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) The Sun is your source of energy. This may be symbolic; nevertheless, you will need more sleep. Your energy will be flagging either from a busy schedule or inertia. This window of time is also good for forming working units with others because you have a better appreciation of how partnerships work. The next four weeks are also an excellent time to consult experts.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20) Life has been good and you've been partying! But good parties have cleanup crews, right? The next four weeks will be like a cleanup time for you because you want to run your life more efficiently. You want to be productive and effective in everything you do. This is why you're keen to pull your act together. You even want to be physically healthier, which is why you might stop a bad habit.

— Camp Tannadoonah —

It's Wild and Wacky week at Camp Tannadoonah this week. The CITs (Counselors in Training) are the "committee" this week and are in charge of planning the evening activities.

Next week is Holidays Week, and on Wednesday evening (July 27) we are celebrating Halloween and will be coming around the lake trick or treating! We'll have approximately 60 campers going each direction – one group along the north and east shorts, and one group along the cove and west side. If you're home, and would like to provide treats to the campers, we'll be leaving camp around 7:15pm.

This week I wanted to do something a little different in our Camp column. In the past year, our board has been working towards developing a new process for recruiting and bringing on new board members. I'd like to explain that process, and invite anyone who may be interested in applying to join the board to do so.

The first step for prospective board members is for them to fill out an application. This can be done online (at tiny.cc/BoardApp) or by emailing me to obtain a hard copy. Once we receive an application, it is shared with our Board Development Committee. The committee is made up of 3 current board members and 2 non board members.

In consultation with the Board of Directors, the Board Development Committee has developed a list of current gaps or needs on the Board. When new applications are received, they are reviewed by members of the committee, and a decision is made on whether the applicant could fill one of those current needs or gaps. If so, the Board Development Committee will contact the applicant to set up time for an interview, to be conducted by at least 3 members of the committee. After an interview with the Board Development Committee, potential applicants are also asked to meet with the Executive Director (that's me, Amber) to talk about Camp Fire, Camp Tannadoonah, and board roles.

If an applicant does not fill a current need or gap on the board, the committee will contact them to see if there is a role that they could fill on a committee or in another volunteer capacity.

Alternatively, they may be asked if they would like their application to be kept on file in case of a future need or gap on the Board that they could fill.

Once applicants have been interviewed by the committee, and had a meeting with me, the Board Development Committee meets to discuss the application. The committee typically meets monthly.

They decide whether or not to recommend the applicant to the board for a board position. The committee contacts the applicant to let them know whether they will be put on the slate at the next board meeting or not.

If an applicant is recommended to the board, at the next board meeting a vote of the Board Members is held to determine if the individual will be approved to become a new member of the Board. Board terms are three years in length, and members may serve up to two consecutive terms, for a total of up to 6 years as a board member.

We are currently looking for new board members, and in particular the gaps we are trying to fill include individuals with legal background, fundraising experience, and grant writing skills. If you are interested in applying to join the Camp Fire River Bend Board, please complete the application at tiny.cc/BoardApp or email me at amber@tannadoonah.org and I can get you a hard copy. Thank you!
